

The archive preserves every measurement. Each record keeps its original page.

Researchers review the ledger each morning. A clear label binds each entry to its source.

The catalog stays open for review. Every correction requires a second signature.